

Cabot Corporation Releases 2015 Sustainability Report Update

June 23, 2016

Cabot Issues Its First UN Global Compact Communication on Progress and Highlights Sustainability Progress

BOSTON--(BUSINESS WIRE)--Jun. 23, 2016-- Cabot Corporation (NYSE: CBT) today released its 2015 Sustainability Report Update, highlighting the company's sustainability progress and performance in calendar year 2015. This report also serves as Cabot's first Communication on Progress according to the Ten Principles of the UN Global Compact (UNGC). Cabot became a signatory to the UNGC in July 2015.

"Our commitment to deliver excellence and act responsibly influences everything we do at Cabot. This is exemplified throughout our global network of facilities and people that bring their very best every day to serve our customers and the communities in which we operate," said Cabot President and Chief Executive Officer Sean Keohane. "As a signatory of the UNGC, we continue to drive meaningful change in the way that we engage with our employees, customers and suppliers in the areas of human rights, labor, environment and anti-corruption. Furthermore, we are committed to using our skills and leadership position to influence and collaborate with others to develop products that make a difference in the world around us."

Highlights from the update report include:

- Environmental performance: Cabot remains committed to reducing its impact on the environment through continuous improvements in its operations. As of 2015, Cabot has achieved 43% of its goal to reduce energy intensity and 41% of its long-term greenhouse gases intensity reduction goal.
- Leadership development: Cabot is dedicated to providing employees with development opportunities that address their individual career goals and focus on the skills and competencies required for excellent performance and career advancement. Cabot utilized technology to deliver effective training programs that are interactive and engaging. Cabot kicked-off its first ever Plant Engineer Development Program that blended self-paced e-learning modules, WebEx sessions and action learning projects supported by plant and regional staff.
- Innovation: Cabot is diligent in responding to evolving end-user demands and government regulations. In response to tightened regulations limiting the use of certain polycyclic aromatic hydrocarbons (PAH) in plastic and rubber products, Cabot introduced a series of low PAH carbon blacks for rubber product applications. The new products are designed to provide customers with alternative reinforcing and semi-reinforcing carbon blacks for use in applications that require lower PAH content.
- Community engagement: In 2015, the Cabot Corporation Foundation and Cabot's global locations donated or pledged approximately $1.2 million in direct and in-kind charitable contributions aimed to contribute to environmental conservation, community health, as well as science and technology programs.

"We have made considerable progress toward the sustainability goals that we established in 2008 and bolstered last year," said Martin O'Neill, senior vice president, Safety, Health and Environment. "I believe that through a sharp focus on these goals and engagement with our stakeholders we will be able to accelerate our results to benefit our company, customers and communities. We look forward to further advancing our industry leadership with respect to environmentally and socially responsible operations and innovation in the chemical industry."
